Somme Prairie - Northbrook - Marty Winn

For this newsletter, instead of featuring a location found from Google Earth that is far away and dangerous, I will be featuring a site that is very close and very safe, but most people have never seen it. It is Somme Prairie on northwest corner of Waukegan and Dundee Roads in Northbrook. You cannot see it from the road as it is blocked by trees. When you are in it, you cannot see anything that is man made. You hear the road noise from Waukegan and Dundee roads, and occasionally a train that passes on its west side. It is part of the Cook County forest preserve. There are three sections to Somme - Somme prairie preserve (70 acres), Somme Prairie grove (85 acres) and Somme Woods (150 acres)

There used to be a parking lot on the west side of Waukegan Road next to the grove, but now there is a No Parking sign there. You can only park at Somme Woods (east of Waukegan road off of Dundee) You then take a short trail through the woods to get to the corner of Waukegan and Dundee Roads. You then have to cross a very busy Waukegan Road. When you get to the other side you will see a sign saying Somme Prairie. You then follow another short trail to get in to Somme prairie. Take a map and compass with you so you can find your way back.
